The true reason for the proposed disa lution of the Damocratic party in Tennessee crops out with the ears of the Nashville Banner. It wears the lion's skin, but its auricular organs are wholly irreessible. It never fails, when uttering its prophetic jeremiads, to express the hope that the diabolism of the ku-klux will be restrained. It draws closely to Governor Brown in the latest number before us, approves the shameful proposicind enactments which will enthe United States; Lord Chief Justice Sir able Western Tennessee roads to cacape the clutches of Tom Scott by paying their odebtedness to the State, and preventing forced sales of these roads, and closes a senseless paragraph of sycophancy to official power by asserting the gentle hope that Governor Brown will succeed in annihilating ku-kluxism. Why this perpetual recurrence to a phantom? Within good policy on the part of the legislature concession to the ku-klu committee? Why this persist admission and assertion ." a state of facts that give Grant a pretext for State when we "come down, Captain the declaration of martial law in Scott," Tennessee and throughout the South? Whither will the awk ward pie-bald squad bend its doubtfol steps? The Banner, even now, points the way. It will find an Abraham's bosom beneath Grant's walstcost. It will disover in the capacious pockets Tom Scott bonds and national bank notes, McGhee will be there, with cherubic golden wings among the blessed, and then ku-kluxism, which the Banner dally rolls as a sweet morsel within its rosy lips, will become the thome of its unrestrained invectives. It is slowly and surely paying the way for this grand consummatic and sane people should watch its doubtfu heeltating steps, as it toddles in the swaddling clothes of Radicalism, toward the supposed tomb of Tennesso

THAT it is the purpose of Tom Scott and his Nashvilla ring, to secure absolute mastery of the railroad system of Tennessee, and thus of the State itself, is mairated by the fact that recently, when a West Tennessee rallroad company Tom Scott's ring undertook to destroy the roads? We shall see.
